Case No. 2:23-cv-01739-JNW

DEFENDANTS' COMBINED MOTION TO DISMISS PURSUANT TO FRCP
RULE 12(b)(6) AND MOTION TO STRIKE
PURSUANT TO FRCP RULE 12(f)

Note for Hearing: December 15, 2023
With Oral Argument

I. INTRODUCTION

Defendants Herc Rentals, Inc., and Herc Rentals Employee Services LLC (collectively, “Defendants”) respectfully submit this Combined Motion to Dismiss the Class Action Complaint (“Complaint”) filed by Plaintiff Jacob Atkinson (“Plaintiff”), pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), and to Strike the Class Action Allegations in the Complaint, pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(f).

Plaintiff claims that on March 9, 2023, he applied for a job opening with Defendants, but the job posting did not include the wage scale or salary range, in violation of RCW 49.58.110’s job posting requirements. Dkt. 2-1, ¶¶ 16, 29-31. However, Plaintiff failed to plead a plausible claim for relief under RCW 49.58.110 for two reasons:

- 1 • First, RCW 49.58.110 applies only to applicants and employees who are residents
2 of Washington, and Plaintiff failed to allege that he was a resident of Washington 3 at the time that he applied for a job with Defendants. Moreover, Plaintiff cannot 4 cure this failure by amending the Complaint because he was a resident of California 5 when he submitted his application, and the Complaint is subject to dismissal 6 without leave to amend on this basis alone. See, e.g., Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp.
7 USA, 317 F.3d 1097, 1107-08 (9th Cir. 2003) (noting dismissal may be without 8 leave where amendment would be futile).
- 9 • Second, RCW 49.58.110 requires an application to be made in good faith and with 10 the intent to gain employment, but Plaintiff failed to allege that he applied for a job 11 with Defendants in such a manner. Instead, Plaintiff attempts to recast RCW 12 49.58.110 as a strict liability statute under which Defendants would be liable to any 13 individual who merely submits a job application, without regard to their 14 qualification, interest, and the like. Such a scenario is disfavored and would lead 15 to absurd results.

16 Therefore, Plaintiff's First Cause of Action should be dismissed.

17 The Court should likewise dismiss Plaintiff's Second and Third Causes of Action for 18 injunctive and declaratory relief because there is no underlying substantive claim.

19 In addition, Plaintiff seeks to pursue his RCW 49.58.110 claim as a class action pursuant 20 to Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a) and (b)(3) on behalf of all individuals who, since January 1, 2023, applied 21 for a job opening with Defendants in Washington where the job posting did not include the wage 22 scale or salary range for the position. Dkt. 2-1, ¶ 20. Although Plaintiff failed to state a claim 23 under RCW 49.58.110 for the reasons described above, even if he had plausibly pleaded such a 24 claim, Plaintiff's class action allegations should be stricken. That is because RCW 49.58.110 25 considers Plaintiff to be an applicant only for the specific job posting that he applied for, and thus, 26 he cannot purport to be representative of applicants for every available job of Defendants.
Accordingly, Plaintiff's class action allegations should be stricken, or in the very least, they should be limited to the position for which he applied.

II. RELEVANT BACKGROUND FACTS

A. The Complaint and Plaintiff's Application

Plaintiff alleges that, on or about March 9, 2023, he submitted an online application for a "ProSales Associate" position at Defendants' location located in Woodville, Washington. Id. at ¶ 16. Plaintiff attached to his Complaint screenshots of what he claims is the job posting for this position. Id. at Ex. 1. Plaintiff alleges that the job posting did not disclose the wage scale or salary range, in violation of RCW 49.58.110. Id. at ¶¶ 29-32. Plaintiff claims that, as a result, he lost valuable time applying for the job and he was unable to evaluate, negotiate, or compare the pay for the position to other ones. Id. at ¶¶ 17-18. Plaintiff seeks to bring his RCW 49.58.110 claim on a classwide basis encompassing the applicants for every job posting of Defendants in Washington that did not include a wage scale or salary range. Id. at ¶ 20.

Plaintiff failed to allege that he applied in good faith and with a genuine interest in employment with Defendants. Nor did he allege that he had the requisite experience, skills, and qualifications for the position for which he applied.

Although he alleged in his Complaint that he is a resident of King County, Washington, id. at ¶ 8, as part of his application, Plaintiff disclosed that he resided in Goleta, California at the time that he applied for the ProSales Associate position. Dkt. 3, Declaration of Derek Lively In Support of Defendants' Notice of Removal, Ex. 1 at ¶ 5; Dkt. 3-1. His application for the ProSales position consisted essentially of submitting his resume. Id. Despite applying for a sales position with Defendants, Plaintiff's resume reflected no sales-related experience whatsoever, but rather, experience, among other things, as a provider of acupuncture and massage services. Id.

B. Plaintiff's Other Similar Cases

In addition to this case, Plaintiff also initiated approximately 15 lawsuits based on nearly identical alleged violations of RCW 49.58.110. Pankratz Decl., ¶ 11. In doing so, Plaintiff took a scattershot approach of applying for positions including sales with Defendants, and a variety of other seemingly unrelated positions with AJP Enterprises, Adidas America, Albertson's, Simon

1 Property Group, Jacobs Solutions, Office Depot, Burberry, Washington Fine Wine & Spirits, 2 Aaron's, Sonesta International Hotels, AMF Bowling Centers, Intercontinental Hotels Group, 3 Williams-Sonoma, and BP Products. Pankratz Decl., ¶ 11.

4 C. Washington Equal Pay and Opportunities Act

5 The EPOA, which was originally enacted in 2018 to update the existing Washington equal 6 pay act, aims to close the “gap in wages and advancement opportunities among workers in 7 Washington, especially women.” RCW 49.58.005(1). Washington’s legislature “intend[ed]” to 8 “address income disparities” and “to reflect equal status of all workers in Washington.” RCW 9 49.58.005(4).

10 Subsequently, in 2019, the Washington legislature amended the EPOA to require 11 Washington employers to disclose wage scales upon the request of an employee or an applicant 12 who has been offered a position. Later, in 2022, the Washington legislature again amended the 13 EPOA. This time the Washington legislature required covered Washington employers to disclose 14 wage scales in job postings. See RCW 49.58.110. According to the EPOA’s legislative history, 15 this requirement was designed to facilitate a “discussion” about compensation “at the start of the 16 process instead of after an offer has been made” and to prevent “candidates [from] spend[ing] 17 hours going through rounds of interviews [without wage information].” Dkt. 2-1, ¶ 3 (quoting 18 H.B. Rep. ESSB 5761, at 2-3 (Wash. 2022)).

19 The Washington State Department of Labor and Industries (“L&I”), which is the state 20 agency charged with enforcing and interpreting the EPOA, see RCW 49.58.010 and RCW 21 49.58.090, has provided guidance regarding the interpretation and application of the EPOA. In 22 December of 2022, L&I issued Publication F700-225-000 containing updates about the EPOA’s 23 new job posting requirements. See <https://www.lni.wa.gov/forms-publications/F700-225-000.pdf>, 24 Pankratz Decl., Ex. I. Publication F700-225-000 explained that RCW 49.58.110, which contained 25 the EPOA’s new job posting requirements, “applies to Washington based employees and 26 applicants.” Id. at 1. In its previously released Administrative Policy Number ES.E.1, L&I

1 explained that “[a] person is only considered an “applicant” for the specific posting(s) they applied 2 for, not for every available job of the employer.” See [https://www.lni.wa.gov/workers-4 rights/docs/ese1.pdf](https://www.lni.wa.gov/workers-

 3 rights/docs/ese1.pdf), Pankratz Decl., Ex. J, at 9. In February of 2023, L&I issued F700-200-000, 5 which explained that “L&I will investigate complaints filed by applicants who have applied to a 6 job in good faith with the intent of gaining employment.” See https://lni.wa.gov/forms-publications/F700-200-000.pdf, Pankratz Decl., ¶ 14, Ex. K, at 1.

7 III. LEGAL STANDARD FOR MOTION TO DISMISS

8 Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), the Court may dismiss claims for “failure to state a claim 9 upon which relief can be granted.” In evaluating a complaint that is challenged under Rule 10 (12)(b)(6), the Court must accept the allegations as true and construe the facts pled in the light 11 most favorable to the plaintiff. Love v. United States, 915 F.2d 1242, 1245 (9th Cir. 1989). The 12 Court may not, however, “supply essential elements” of Plaintiff’s claim. Ivey v. Bd. Of Regents 13 of Univ. of Alaska, 673 F.2d 266, 268 (9th Cir. 1982). To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint 14 must “contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible 15 on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 679 (2009) (quoting Bell Atlantic v. Twombly, 550 16 U.S. 544, 570 (2007)). “Threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by 17 mere conclusory statements do not suffice.” Ashcroft, 556 U.S. at 678.

18 While the Court must accept all well-pleaded facts as true, it need not “accept as true 19 allegations that are merely conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable 20 inferences.” Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001). Nor is the 21 Court required to accept legal conclusions cased in the form of factual allegations if those 22 conclusions cannot reasonably be drawn from the facts alleged. Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 23 18 F.3d 752, 754-755 (9th Cir. 1994).

24 In ruling on a motion to dismiss under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6), the Court may “consider 25 certain materials – such as documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by 26 reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice – without converting the motion to dismiss

1 into a motion for summary judgment.” Hanson v. MGM Resorts Int’l, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2 113690, *4-5 (W.D. Wash. July 20, 2017).

3 As discussed herein, the EPOA’s job posting requirements set forth in RCW 49.58.110 do 4 not apply to an applicant who is not a resident of Washington at the time that the individual applied.
 5 Nor do they apply to unqualified applicants or those who have no genuine intention of interviewing 6 for and/or accepting the position at issue. Instead, they apply to residents of Washington who have 7 applied for a job in good faith with the intent of gaining employment. Since Plaintiff failed to 8 make any such allegations in the Complaint, and because RCW 49.58.110 neither applies to non-9 Washington residents nor allows civil actions by applicants, Plaintiff has failed to state a claim for 10 relief. Therefore, the Complaint should be dismissed.

11 IV. ARGUMENT FOR MOTION TO DISMISS

12 A. Plaintiff failed to allege he was a Washington resident at the time he submitted 13 an application to Defendant.

14 The EPOA does not authorize a non-resident to assert a claim under RCW 49.58.110. As 15 described above, the intent of the EPOA is to address “gap[s] in wages and advancement 16 opportunities among workers in Washington,” RCW 49.58.005(1), and to protect “workers in 17 Washington state,” RCW 49.58.005(2). See also, Dkt. 2-1, ¶ 2. Nothing in the EPOA’s text gives 18 it an extraterritorial reach. Further to this point, L&I’s Publication F700-225-000 provides that 19 RCW 49.58.110, which contained the EPOA’s new job posting requirements, “applies to 20 Washington based employees and applicants.” Pankratz Decl., Ex. I, at 1.

21 Here, while Plaintiff alleges that he is presently a resident of King County, Washington, 22 Dkt. 2-1, ¶ 8, he failed to allege that he was a resident of Washington at the time that he applied 23 for a position with Defendants. As explained above, Plaintiff, however, cannot even make such 24 an allegation in an amended pleading because he was a resident of California at that time. Dkt. 3-25 1. Since the EPOA does not protect a non-resident applicant like Plaintiff, the First Cause of 26

1 Action alleging a claim under RCW 49.58.110 should be dismissed. Since this defect cannot be 2 fixed by amendment, the dismissal should be without leave to amend.

3 B. Plaintiff failed to allege that he applied for a position with Defendants in good 4 faith and with the intent of gaining employment.

5 The term “applicant” is undefined in the EPOA. If the plain language is ambiguous, a court 6 may “resort to aids of statutory construction and legislative history.” Univ. Ins., LLC v. Allstate 7 Ins. Co., 564 F. Supp. 3d 934, 939–40 (W.D. Wash. 2021) (quotation omitted). An administrative 8 agency’s interpretations of statutory text “are entitled to deference under Washington law and will 9 be upheld if they are a plausible construction of the statute or rule.” Huntley v. Bonner’s, Inc., 10 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26643, *12 n.4 (W.D. Wash. Aug. 14, 2003) (quotation omitted).

11 The Washington legislature intended for RCW 49.58.119 to protect applicants who applied 12 for positions in good faith and with the intent of gaining employment, particularly those applicants 13 who were or would be engaged in wage or salary discussions and interviews with employers. See,
14 e.g., H.B. Rep. ESSB 5761, at 2 (noting disclosure would allow for pay discussions at the outset),
17 F700-200-000, L&I confirmed this good faith requirement when it explained that “L&I will 18 investigate complaints filed by applicants who have applied to a job in good faith with the intent 19 of gaining employment.” Pankratz Decl., Ex. K, at 1.

20 Here, Plaintiff made no allegation that he applied for the position with Defendants in good 21 faith with the intent of gaining employment. In fact, Plaintiff’s application and conduct as it relates 22 to RCW 49.58.110 indicates that the opposite is true. At the time that he applied for a position 23 with Defendants, Plaintiff apparently owned and operated an acupuncture and massage services 24 business in Goleta, California, which based on Google Maps is more than 1,000 miles away from 25 King County, Washington. Pankratz Decl., ¶ 16. Yet for some reason, he applied for a sales 26 position with Defendants, despite not having worked in such a role in his entire career. Dkt. 3-1;

1 Pankratz Decl., ¶ 2. Furthermore, in just the past several weeks and months, Plaintiff has become 2 a serial job applicant and apparently a poster child for class actions under RCW 49.58.110. Indeed, 3 Plaintiff has applied for approximately 15 other low-level positions at office supply stores, hotel 4 chains, gas stations, furniture stores, bowling allies, furniture rental companies, luxury fashion 5 stores, and other employers in Washington, and shortly thereafter, he has filed similar class action 6 lawsuits these employers. Pankratz Decl., ¶ 11. In other words, it seems like he was trolling career 7 pages in search for job postings, but not the jobs themselves. Plaintiff's conduct demonstrates that 8 he is not applying for jobs in good faith or genuinely interested in gaining employment, but rather, 9 he is much more interested in trying to collect money under RCW 49.58.110 from as many 10 Washington employers as possible.

11 The Washington legislature did not intend for an applicant to be able to game the system 12 using RCW 49.58.110 like Plaintiff. See, e.g., S.B. Rep. ESSB 5761, at 3 (noting "There could be 13 some unintended consequences."), https://lawfilesext.leg.wa.gov/biennium/2021-
 15 Pankratz Decl., ¶ 15. But that is what Plaintiff is attempting to do by recasting RCW 49.58.110 as 16 a strict liability statute under which Washington employers would automatically be liable to any 17 applicant who submits a job application, without regard to their qualification, genuine interest, and 18 the like. Consider how this scenario could play out. Plaintiff's counsel has understandably been 19 featured in a multitude of media placements regarding the nearly 50 class actions for about nine 20 named plaintiffs that they have filed against Washington employers under RCW 49.58.110.
 21 Imagine that these media placements go viral on social media, and before you know it, the general 22 public starts applying for jobs left and right to see if they can cash in too. Are these so-called 23 applicants entitled to damages under RCW 49.58.110? According to Plaintiff, "Absolutely!"
 24 What if it is a local second grade class that catches wind of the trend and the students begin 25 applying for jobs – can they collect damages too? Plaintiff says, "You bet!" Interpreting RCW 26 49.58.110 to have a strict liability standard is disfavored and should be avoided otherwise it will

1 lead to absurd results. See United States v. LKAV, 712 F.3d 436, 440 (9th Cir. 2013) (“[S]tatutory 2 interpretations which would produce absurd results are to be avoided,”) (citation and alteration 3 omitted); see also Rowland v. Cal. Men's Colony, 506 U.S. 194, 200, 113 S.Ct. 716, 121 L.Ed.2d 4 656 (1993) (describing “the common mandate of statutory construction to avoid absurd results”);
5 Griffin v. Oceanic Contractors, Inc., 458 U.S. 564, 575, 102 S.Ct. 3245, 73 L.Ed.2d 973 (1982) 6 (stating that “interpretations of a statute which would produce absurd results are to be avoided”).

7 Based on the foregoing, to avoid strict liability resulting in unintended consequences and 8 absurd results, good faith and genuine interest must be a prima facie element of a claim under 9 RCW 49.58.110. Because Plaintiff did not allege that he applied for a position with Defendants 10 in good faith and with the intent of gaining employment, the First Cause of Action alleging a claim 11 under RCW 49.58.110 should be dismissed.

12 C. Plaintiff Cannot Obtain Injunctive and Declaratory Relief.

13 After dismissal of the RCW 49.58.110 claim, the Court should dismiss Plaintiff’s Second 14 Cause of Action for injunctive relief. Such “relief is a remedy and not a cause of action.” Blake 15 v. United States Bank Nat’l Ass’n, 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 169268, *7 (W.D. Wash. Nov. 27, 16 2013).

17 Plaintiff’s Third Cause of Action for a declaratory judgment should also be dismissed.
18 Neither RCW 49.58.060 nor RCW 49.58.070 identify declaratory relief as a remedy. Even if 19 Plaintiff is relying upon the Declaratory Judgment Act, Chapter 7.24 RCW, it “creates only a 20 remedy, not a cause of action.” Bisson v. Bank of Am., N.A., 919 F.Supp.2d 1130, 1139 (W.D.
21 Wash. 2013). “[T]he [C]ourt cannot grant declaratory relief in the absence of a substantive cause 22 of action.” Id. at 1139 (dismissing declaratory relief claim). Thus, there is no claim for declaratory 23 relief.

V. ARGUMENT FOR MOTION TO STRIKE

A. Legal Standard.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(f) provides that a court “may strike from a pleading an insufficient defense or any redundant, immaterial, impertinent, or scandalous matter.” A court may strike class allegations where the plaintiff cannot make a prima facie showing of Rule 23’s requirements or where discovery is unlikely to result in information supporting the class allegation. Doninger v. Pac. Nw. Bell, Inc., 564 F.2d 1304, 1313 (9th Cir. 1977)). Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a) requires a plaintiff seeking to bring a class certification to meet four requirements – numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation. In addition, a plaintiff must meet one of the requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b). See Amchem Prods., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 613-14, 117 S.Ct. 2231, 138 L.Ed.2d 689 (1997).

As discussed herein, in the very least, Plaintiff cannot demonstrate typicality (Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3)) and predominance (Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3)) for similar reasons. That is, Plaintiff and the putative class members that he purports to represent are subject to unique and individualized defenses, such as, but not limited to, whether each of them applied for a job with Defendants in good faith and with the intent to gain employment. The fact that Plaintiff cannot satisfy these requirements can be determined based on no more than a review of Plaintiff’s Complaint. Put differently, no discovery is necessary to make these determinations, and the class allegations should be stricken, or in the very least, limited to the position for which Plaintiff applied at this early stage. See, e.g., Phenylpropanolamine (PPA) Prod. Liab. Litig., 208 F.R.D. 625, 633, 634 (W.D. Wash. 2002) (striking class allegations where little to no discovery took place); Stearns v. Select Comfort Retail Corp., 763 F. Supp. 2d 1128, 1139 (N.D. Cal. 2010) (same).

B. The Job Postings to which Plaintiff and the Putative Class Members Applied are Different and Their Claims under RCW 49.58.110 are Subject to Individualized Defenses.

Plaintiff’s RCW 49.58.110 claim is atypical of the claims of the putative class members that he seeks to represent. “The test of typicality is whether other members have the same or

1 similar injury, whether the action is based on conduct which is not unique to the named plaintiffs, 2 and whether other class members have been injured by the same course of conduct.” Hanon v.
3 Dataproducts Corp., 976 F.2d 497, 508 (9th Cir. 1992) (internal quotation omitted).
4 “[R]epresentative claims are ‘typical’ if they are reasonably coextensive with those of absent class 5 members [...]” Staton v. Boeing Co., 327 F.3d 938, 957 (9th Cir. 2003). Here, there is an absence 6 of typicality because Plaintiff seeks to represent a class of applicants who applied for positions 7 with Defendants that are different than the one for which he applied. Dkt. 2-1, ¶ 20.

8 In addition, predominance is lacking because individualized questions, instead of common 9 ones, predominate. “The Rule 23(b)(3) predominance inquiry asks the court to make a global 10 determination of whether common questions prevail over individualized ones.” Torres v. Mercer 11 Canyons Inc., 835 F.3d 1125, 1134 (9th Cir. 2016). Here, according to F700-200-000 issued by 12 L&I after the effective date of the most recent amendments to the EPOA, the potential for liability 13 to applicants under RCW 49.58.110 is limited to those “who have applied to a job in good faith 14 with the intent of gaining employment.” Pankratz Decl., ¶ 14. The good faith element of RCW 15 49.58.110 must be determined on a case-by-case basis resulting in a number of individualized 16 questions, such as, but not limited to, whether the applicant is qualified for the position, whether 17 the applicant is genuinely interested in the role, and whether the applicant intends to gain 18 employment. The different answers of applicants to these questions will give rise to individualized 19 defenses of Defendants to the RCW 49.58.110 claims of Plaintiff and the putative class members.

20 Accordingly, Plaintiff’s inability to demonstrate at least two requirements of Fed. R. Civ.
21 P. 23, typicality and predominance, is apparent from the face of the Complaint, and his class action 22 allegations should be stricken.

23 Even if the Court determines it would be premature to strike Plaintiff’s class allegations at 24 the pleading stage, it should still limit them. Contrary to Plaintiff’s overly-broad Class Definition 25 encompassing every job posting of Defendants in Washington that did not include a wage scale or 26 salary range, RCW 49.58.110 itself limits liability to the specific job posting at issue, and not all of them. Further to this point, in Administrative Policy Number ES.E.1, L&I explained that “[a] person is only considered an “applicant” for the specific posting(s) they applied for, not for every available job of the employer.” Pankratz Decl., ¶ 13.

In other words, if Plaintiff can bring this claim (which he cannot as described above), then he would be authorized to do so only as to the specific job posting for which he applied. Because Plaintiff did not apply for every job posting of Defendants encompassed by his overly-broad Class Definition, he is not an applicant for them, and thus, he has no standing to pursue a civil action as it relates to those job postings for which he did not apply. Therefore, in the very least, Plaintiff’s Class Definition should be limited to the specific job posting for which he applied.

VI. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated above, the Court should dismiss this lawsuit in entirety, and strike the class action allegations.

Respectfully submitted this 13th day of November, 2023.

I certify that this memorandum contains
